Malta is an island famed for its Knights of St. John its crosses and its terriers, particularly the terriers. Malterriers, particularly the terriers. Maltese terriers are not gray in color, as the uninitiated always expect to find them, but are snowy white, with black eyes and a black nose, which look like three ripe blackberries in a dish of whipped cream.

All Maltese terriers are not pure white. There are, alas! spurious ones, which have a yellow streak, light brown eyes and and "Dudley" noses. None of these, however, is allowed to repose in the Dyker Kennels.

Mrs. Carl Baumann owns the largest

Mrs. Carl Baumann owns the largest and finest kennel of Maltese terriors in America, and it is her boast that there is not a cream-colored nor a pink-nosed log in the lot.

Mrs. Baumann has very decided ideas Mrs. Baumann has very decided ideas in regard to Maltese terriers, and she has experimented at great length, weeding out any anachronisms in the shape of imperfect specimens, so that now her stock, as well as her judgment, have come to be accepted as the standard. The most famous Maltese terrier matron in the Dyker kennels, probably the most famous in America, in Chammatron in the Dyker kennels, probably the most famous in America, is Champion Dyker Dolly. Dolly enjoys the distinction of never having been defeated at the hands—or rather the paws—of anything of her breed and sex. She is a particularly deadly specimen of the female of the species, and to compete against her means certain de-

Somewhere, sometime, perhaps, there may be something good enough to wrest the laureis from Dolly, but the time is not yet, nor soon, apparently. Dolly took her first winners' rosette in 1912, and since that time she has taken nothing but blues. This young lady was the winner at the Mineola show in 1912, 1913 and 1914. She was also chosen as the best Mattese terrier in the show of this year's exhibition, winning Miss Newbold's cup, which was a huge silver trophy valued at $100. Dolly is not yet three and a half years old, and she has started on her fifth championship.

Dolly's young son, Sweetsir of Dyker, has almost completed his second championship, and he is not yet two years old. Sweetsir enjoys the distinction of being the youngest Maltese terrier champion in the world, as he attained that honor at the tender age of one year. As a puppy he went through the winners, defeating champions. Sweetsir is very small, carries a dense coat, is a wonderful show dog and is the sire of several especially good puppies. Sweetsir no longer belongs to the Dyker kennels. He has been sold to Mrs. J. G. Rossman, of Brooklyn, who is the latest recruit to the Maltese terrier farcy. Mrs. Rossman believes in buying the best, and she did not hesitate when Mrs. Baumann told her the price of Sweetsir—$650. Mrs. Rossman intends to campaign him.

black and tan cost.

Mrs. Baumann takes care of her dogs herself, for she says that she never is sure that everything is right unless she does it. One does not blame her after viewing the Dyker family; funny little snowballs toddling around and crying out every time they hear Mrs. Baumann's voice. She has dubbed herself "meal ticket," and it does not take them long to learn that when they hear their mistress approach it means a bit of delicious chopped meat.

Besides looking after all of her can line proteges, Mrs. Baumann is associate editor of a Southern kennel gazette, of another on the Pacific Coast, is a noted judge of toys, reviews all breeds, and her bench campaigns are personally conducted tours. Mrs. Baumann laughs when she enumerates her duties, and says: "Aside from that I haven't a thing in the world to do."

The Lament of the Bloodhound

I am the mighty bloodhound, the dog that folk are afraid of:

My ferocity is all a myth—the stuff that dreams are made of.

I never eat up little boys-I'm always kind and nice. No kin of mine would ever chase Eliza

And yet no one will pet me-they sort of ostracize.

And say: "I bet he's an ugly one-look at those awful eyes.

I'm valiant as the St. Bernard and gentle as the Peke. I play inside my own bu love is all I seek.

I long to be a lap dog-my heart is kind and good. But no one dares to fondle me-I'm all

That lone, last rose of summer has nothing at all on me.

For auld lang syne I sigh and pine and could lay me down and dee.

has achieved what Welbach Roger did at the recent Newport show, where he was, according to the judges, the best sporting dog in the show.

Roger has been in America only two months, and he made his bow to the public at Newport, which is always the open sesame for debutants. Further-more, Roger was the particular protege of the Duke of Portland. He was pur-chased by George R. Preston. The St. Elmo Kennel Club will hold a bench show at Ocean Breeze Park, Far Rockaway, next Saturday, the pro-ceeds to go to the widow of Karl Bjurman, who was killed by a motor of the Duke of Portland. He was pur-chased by George R. Preston.

Roger started his American career right by winning in his class and in the specials, besides the silver trophy which Mrs. Tyler Morse offered for the best sporting dog or bitch and the cash prize offered by the club for the best
